

USES TORCH ON FROZEN GAS PIPE CAUSING FIRE

The Motor Inn Garage at Tinley Park was threatened by fire and Albert Brandau, also of Tinley Park, had a narrow escape from serious injury when the latter attempted to thaw out a frozen gas feed pipe on a car with a blow torch. Mr. Brandau had driven his brother's car to the Motor Inn garage Tuesday morning and ask C. A. Steinhagen, the proprietor of the garage for the blow torch. Brandau opened a pet cock on the gas tank of the car, a Ford coupe and held the torch up to the frozen feed line pipe. The heat of the torch quickly melted a little piece of ice lodged in the pipe and there was a sudden spurt of flame as the gasoline shot out of the open pet cock, the stream of flowing gasoline being about the thickness of a lead pencil.

Mr. Steinhagen with the aid of a number men pushed the blazing car out doors and by shoveling snow on the leaking gas the blaze was finally put out. The whole front of the car was burned to a cinder. Mr. Brandau suffered burns on his hands but was not hurt otherwise.

Milk Strike Fails To Halt Mokena Shipments

The members of the Pure Milk Association throughout the Chicago Dairy District have gone on a strike the past week, demanding that the Bowman and Borden companies pay the Association's price of $2.85 a hundred weight instead of the former price of $2.50.

At a meeting held at Woodstock Monday members of the Pure Milk Association voted to go on strike and if the strike vote is adhered to, W. C. McQueen, president of the Association said from 50 to 60 per cent of Chicago's normal supply of milk from tested cattle will be shut off.

Mokena was among the locals listed who voted in favor of the strike, but thus far milk is being shipped from Mokena just the same as before the strike. Herman Schweser, local representative of the Bowman Company says that just as much milk was received at the local Bowman receiving plant and shipped by truck to Chicago Wednesday morning as before the strike.

Dr. Hite To Speak To Mokena P. T. A.

A., announces that Dr. Hites, noted child physiologist of Chicago, will address a meeting of the local association at the Mokena public school on the evening of January 22nd commencing at 8 o'clock. Dr. Hites has been heard at P. T. A. meetings in Orland Park and Tinley Park P. T. A., meetings and the parents and the general public of Mokena should turn out to hear him. He will have a vital message.

Rev. Wm. Gorey Addresses Orland Park P. T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park P. T. A., was held Thursday evening, January 10 in the School Auditorium. The intense cold coupled with the icy condition of the roads cut the attendance to about thirty, but those that did brave the weather conditions felt themselves amply repaid for their courage in venturing out. The usual order of business was conducted with dispatch by President, Adele Cooper and was followed by several delightful numbers of a very interesting program—a reading given in a masterly manner by Miss Stella Hahenlein, a pianologue by Miss Gladys Townsend which brought rounds of applause from the audience and an educational paper on "The Object of Saving from the Child's Standpoint" which was ably read by Mrs. Len Kay.

Then followed one of the best of the many good addresses it has been the privilege of the Association to listen to and it is to be regretted that there were not more present to hear it. The Rev. Wm. A. Gorey, pastor of St. Michael's Church of Orland Park, taking as his theme "The Present Generation—Its Disregard for Constituted Authority, Parental, Religious And State" entered into a discussion of a problem which has been a real problem to almost every parent and showed us in no uncertain way just where the fault lay—not with the present generation, which was under indictment but rather with the generation preceding, the fathers and mothers of today who are responsible for the conditions which are so alarming today among our children. Father Gorey handled his subject in a masterly manner and went at his work bare handed and hard fisted and it is to be regretted that more fathers and mothers were not present to hear him.

It was with regret that we heard the announcement of the loss to our Association of our Chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Bert Jennings. Owing to the illness of Mr. Jennings the family have left Orland and moved to Nebraska, where it is hoped that Mr. Jennings will speedily regain his health. Word has been received concerning the Hutchersons, who also were obliged to seek the more salubrious climate of Arizona because of the illness of one of the Hutcherson girls, and this news was not in the least cheering. Mary Margaret was critically ill with pneumonia and the other daughter as well as Mr. and Mrs. Hutcherson were ill with the flu. Not a very cheerful report, is it?

The February meeting will mark the first birthday anniversary of the Association and a special program is being prepared for this occasion, announcement of which will appear at a later date in these columns.

Concrete Paving Only Solution Says Alderman

In commenting on the petition which Edward Schenkel is circulating among the auto owners in the village of Mokena asking that the village board abolish the 1929 vehicle license, alderman Ona E. McGovney states that the village board has wrestled for years with the problem of keeping Front street in repair and that the board would be glad to have practical suggestion made by anyone in the village as to how this street can be kept up and where to get the money from with which to do it. Alderman McGovney points out that the only way in which Front street can be made a permanent street is by paving it with concrete and such improvement would have to be done by special assessment of all property owners having property on this street. He also feels that if this were done, a sewer system would have to be laid at the same time.

Alderman McGovney states that at one time this street was on a map of the Chicago Regional Planning Association as part of a road which was recommended to be placed on the county bond issue. This proposed road was to have started from route 51 west ward parallel with the Rock Island tracks thru the Front street of Mokena westward by the Bruder farm thence under the Rock Island tracks and then connect with the Lincoln Highway. But because the Mokena Hard Road Association was opposed to this plan and fought it, it was dropped declares Alderman McGovney. Had this plan gone thru Mokena's Front street paving problem would have been taken care of the alderman declares.

Red Fox Seen At New Lenox

New Lenox had a real fox hunt one day last week when a red fox said to have weighed about 50 lbs., was seen in the old George Hilton yard by Lew Deadmore. Leigh Jones also came on the scene and both men tracked Mr. Fox thru the camp grounds west ward to the Cherry hill road. True to his name Mr. Fox was a sly fox and succeeded in making his get-away after being tracked for miles. It is seldom that foxes are seen in closely populated sections and the fox mentioned caused quite a sensation among local sports men.

Ind. Rep. Club Gets Hoover O.K.

The following extract taken from "The Republican Woman" on the work of Independent Republican Clubs is of special significance to Mokena voters at this time:

They have laughed at the idea of independent Republican clubs. Politicians and laymen alike have said—"what can be done with them"—and "how can they have power." They have pointed to the elected party organization as the one authority and force in the matter of elections. What they failed to reckon was the fact that in the last analysis winning an election is a matter of votes in the ballot box and that a volunteer organization can do as well, perhaps better, than an elected and paid organization. In the campaign of last summer the Illinois Republican Women's clubs and similar organizations in other states gave a demonstration of what the volunteer organization can do.

And now comes America's greatest genius at organization, her citizen of widest social vision, her President-elect Mr. Herbert Hoover who at once sees the value of organizing patriotic citizens into independent Republican clubs. He sees the splendid possibilities of service in such an organization for men as well as women. He sees the good that can come to the party and to the country from such service. And with characteristic promptitude he advises the National Republican Committee to go forward with this type of organization, turning Hoover-Curtis clubs into permanent party clubs joining forces with the Republican Women's Clubs in states where they are a force and starting in every State in the union a campaign of enrollment for Republicans who are ready to sign up as five citizens of the Republic.

The plan for Independent Republican clubs for both men and women is new—an outgrowth of the recent campaign with unusual number of independent Hoover committees. These groups did heroic work thru-out the fall, they proved what can be done by just plain citizens once they are awake politically.

The Mokena Emmerson Republican Club was organized along the above lines last summer and did very efficient work at the November election which proved what can be done by plain citizens.

CORN BORER EXHIBIT TO VISIT WILL CO

There will be an important exhibit of specimens of the European Corn Borer, with samples of the kind of damage it does and new ways to control it, which will visit Will County soon, according to word received at the Farm Bureau office in Joliet from Prof. Flint, State Entomologist for Illinois.

This exhibit is put out by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Illinois State Natural History Survey and the Will County Farm Bureau. There will be at least one attendant always with it who is well informed on the corn borer situation and new means of control and who will be glad to answer any questions that may arise.

This corn borer truck is the first to be sent into Illinois and will serve the eastern counties first as the borer is already within fifty miles of the Illinois-Indiana line and according to Prof. Flint, without a doubt there will be some found in Illinois during the coming season.

The exhibit will make a tour of the entire county beginning at Crete on January 21, then starting west along the north side of the county and east along the south side, finishing at Becheer on January 26. The complete schedule of dates and places as follows:

WHY NO DIVIDEND?

Editor News-Bulletin:
I read an article in the News-Bulletin last week regarding the surprise that was sprung on the members of the Mokena Men's Club by some of their officers resigning. It has been a greater surprise to learn the club had taken in over $3400 and that when all the bills are paid only $84 are left and no dividend has been paid. There has not been one dividend declared in 6 years on the capital stock. The last dividend was divided as follows: $10 a share, $6 and nothing. We would like to have some information on why no dividends have been declared.

A machine is only new once. Constant use brings "depreciation," and its owner must make provision for the time when it needs repair or quits functioning altogether.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant.

This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Excitement is running high in Springfield as the general assembly swings into action for an interesting term which Governor Emmerson hopes to hold to ninety days. Republican senators hung out the harmony banner at their biennial dinner and caucus held the evening before the legislature was scheduled to convene. State Senator Martin Carlson, Moline, was elected president pro tem of the senate without opposition. Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, Rockford, who was re-elected at the last election, is automatically president of the senate and will of course continue in that capacity after the inauguration. James H. Paddock of Springfield was appointed secretary of the senate. Mrs. Madge Richey of Springfield was made postmistress, and T. B. Scouten of Chicago was named sergeant-at-arms. The minority leader for the Democrats in the senate is Edward Hughes of Chicago. David E. Shanahan, Republican of Chicago, has been elected speaker of the house; George C. Blaeuer of Carlinville is the new clerk; Mrs. Etta B. Hayes of Decatur was named postmistress, and Frank Leonard, Chicago, sergeant-at-arms. The minority leader of the house for the Democrats is Michael Igoo of Chicago. When the gavels fell in both branches of the general assembly on the first day, former Secretary of State Emmerson, by virtue of his office, called the house to order; Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling officiated at the senate session. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Supreme court. The first sessions will undoubtedly be devoted to the organization of the two branches. After preliminary routine business had been disposed of, the two branches met in joint session and heard Governor Small deliver his farewell message. His message, which is the longest in history, was a general review of the achievements of his eight-year administration; he also made recommendations on various subjects. Later the joint session canvassed the vote for state officers in the general election in November. A joint inaugural committee was also appointed to arrange for the details of Governor Emmerson's inaugural which was held a few days ago.

Bids have been received by the department of public works and buildings, division of highways, for the construction of 14.6 miles of paving, 3.3 miles of heavy grading and five separate bridge sections. From a preliminary examination of the bids it appears that satisfactory bids were obtained on the 14.6 miles of paving work at an average cost of $25,000 per mile. This average figure includes the cost of cement which is furnished by the department of public works and buildings.

According to the bids read and subject to final checking, the low bidders included the following:

Bridge in Clinton county, across Kaskaskia river at Carlyle; the Clinton Bridge works, Clinton, Iowa, $80,500.

Route 107, section 104, 2.8 miles of paving in Pike county; Cameron Joyce and company, Keokuk, Iowa, $44,916.91.

Route 107 section 106, 5.4 miles of paving in Pike county; the Madison Construction company, Edwardsville, Ill., $108,119.99.

Route 111, section 125B, consisting of one bridge in Macoupin county; M. C. Robinson, Girard, Ill., $13,418.27.

Route 111, section 125A, 2.6 miles of grading in Macoupin county; Mike Haas, Fairfield, Ill., $31,708.52.

What promises to be the greatest poultry exposition ever held in Southern Illinois is scheduled for presentation at Carbondale, January 16-19, according to the men in charge of poultry promotional work carried on by the Illinois department of agriculture. Premium offerings are divided into three classes—the fanciers, junior department and the commercial hatcheries. Cash premiums, expected to total upward of $2,000, silver trophies and merchandise prizes are offered, and the premium lists, now being distributed, are attracting wide attention. An educational feature, included in the exposition plans, will be open to the public. In this, the poultry husbandry division will present motion pictures and conduct poultry culling demonstrations and clinics. As this feature of the show forms a short course in poultry husbandry, the dates were arranged in accordance with the program of the Southern Illinois Normal university so that the students can attend. The old gymnasium building will house the exhibition.

Common poultry diseases have caused serious losses in farm flocks throughout the state since severe winter weather set in. A. D. Smith, chief of the poultry husbandry division of the state department of agriculture, reports. By way of prevention, Chief Smith advises poultry breeders to retain the best of early hatched broods for breeding stock. "Now," he says, "is the time to guard against this loss next winter, by making plans for early hatching, and by selecting breeding stock with care from early broods."

In a series of three meetings, at Dixon, Springfield and Carbondale, the Accredited Hatcherymen's association of northern, central and southern Illinois conferred with Illinois department of agriculture regarding plans for the inspection service of the 1929 baby chick season.

Poultry specialists, licensed by the state of Illinois for flock inspection work, by passing tests conducted by the poultry husbandry division made arrangement for their season's employment. The flock inspection work is done at the request of poultry breeders who seek markets for their hatching eggs as accredited chicks, through the hatcheries that operate under the inspection regulations. The flock owners, co-operating through the hatcheries they supply, pay the costs of this inspection, and find it profitable in that they receive premium prices for the product of the flocks that get this recognition. Indications are that the accredited hatcheries of Illinois, this season, will market more baby chicks as state accredited than in any other year. Last season Illinois accredited as standard bred more farm flocks than were inspected in all other states combined. Even greater growth is anticipated during the coming season, according to A. D. Smith, chief of the poultry husbandry division of the state department of agriculture, through which this service is administered.

Reviewing the accomplishments in Illinois' program for eradication of bovine tuberculosis, the director of agriculture, Stillman J. Stanard, states that 31 counties were accredited during the year—more than any other state has ever accredited in any year. This brings the total of accredited counties up to 38, which, in area, and in cattle population, represents one-third of Illinois. Cattle under supervision for tuberculosis eradication, in areas engaged as county units, total more than three-fourths of the dairy cattle on the farms of Illinois. In number of herds tested as well as in the number of counties accredited, Illinois, in 1928, led the entire United States, according to the records of the federal officials engaged in this disease eradication work.

With the current epidemic of influenza apparently on the wane in Illinois, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, has announced that he has instructed the various laboratories in his department to utilize every resource at their command in an effort to discover the specific cause of this disease and to develop a vaccine with which to fight it. Success in these endeavors would settle one of the most baffling problems of modern medical research and would provide a means of preventing a highly contagious disease which has thus far run rough shod over all ordinary control methods.

Work on the influenza problem will begin at once in the three principal bacteriological laboratories of the state. Studies in the main laboratory at Springfield will be under the immediate supervision of Thomas G. Hull, Ph. D., state bacteriologist. The program at Chicago will be in charge of Dr. Lloyd Arnold, professor of pathology at the medical college of the University branch of the state diagnostic laboratory. Miss Eva Faught will undertake as much work as possible on the problem at the Carbondale branch of the state diagnostic system. So far nothing has been found that will stop or even modify an outbreak of influenza.

Abraham Lincoln was a descendant of the famous Lee family of Virginia and was directly related to the man with whom he contested the fate of the nation, General Robert E. Lee. Lincoln was not, as popular belief would have him, the product of undistinguished progenitors. Though born in a log cabin, he was but two generations removed from the stately mansions of one of the proudest names in early American history. These statements, upsetting some of the most deep-seated of American traditions, are the result of careful research conducted by Dr. William E. Barton, an able genealogist and one of the best known authorities on Lincoln. They were published for the first time this month.

High school agricultural students who qualify as dairy cattle judges will compete for honors and cash prizes at Jacksonville, January 29, the opening day of the 55th convention of the Illinois State Dairyman's association. An elegant silver cup will grace the trophy cabinet of the school that sends a winning team. Pennants go to teams that place as good as fifth. Individual honors go to students who excel in judging. The three dairy breeds that predominate in the Jacksonville territory—Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey—will be judged. Premium offerings are expected to attract the best dairy cattle in Morgan and surrounding counties. Cattle kept at Jacksonville state institutions will also be displayed.

Soy beans brought Illinois farmers nearly a million dollars more in 1928 than in 1927, and the income from that crop in Illinois has doubled within the past four years, according to the year-end review of farm production issued by the Illinois and United States Departments of Agriculture. Illinois again ranks first in soy bean production. Analyzing the rapid development of this legume crop, Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture, attributes its increasing popularity to extension service and educational methods employed in Illinois.

CHRIST THE SAVIOR

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:3-7; Romans 5:6-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt call His name Jesus; for it is He that shall save His people from their sins.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Saves Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ, the World's Redeemer.

I. The Savior Predicted (Gen. 3:15; Is. 9:3, 7).

In connection with the fall of man and the pronouncement of judgment upon the woman, man and the serpent, and the announcement of the undying enmity which was to exist between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent, ultimate victory was predicted of the woman's seed. This enmity has continued all through the ages, even to the present time. On the cross of Calvary the final stroke was made which crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; 1 John 3:8). This announcement concerning the Conquering One was the first gleam of the glorious gospel of Christ. A great victory was won, but at an infinite cost. The prediction of the Savior became more specific in Isaiah 9:3, 7. The eternal Son of God was "given" to the world, but He was "born" as a child.

II. The Savior Born (Luke 2:11-30, 32).

That which had been predicted was historically fulfilled in the birth of Jesus Christ at Bethlehem. When Jesus was brought into the temple as a child, the Holy Ghost revealed to Simeon that this was the Messiah. He took the child Jesus in his arms and blessed God, declaring that he had now with his eyes seen God's salvation, and that He was to be a light to lighten the Gentiles and was to be the glory of Israel. This appearance of the Savior was heralded to the shepherds by the angels as they ascribed to God the highest glory and announced peace on earth and good will to men.

III. The Savior Described.

1. He seeks the lost (Luke 15:3-7). This seeking of the lost is illustrated by the man leaving the ninety and nine sheep and going after the one which was lost, and his rejoicing over his success in finding it.

2. He died for the lost (John 3:14-17).

As the brazen serpent was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, so Jesus Christ was lifted up on the cross. God gave Jesus Christ to die, to make an atonement for the sins of the world. All those who believe on Him receive eternal life and therefore escape condemnation. Christ's coming into the world was not to condemn the world, but to bring it to salvation.

3. He knows His own (John 10:14).

As the Good Shepherd who seeks out the lost and gives His life for them, He has a definite knowledge of each one of them. Not only does He know them personally, but they in turn know Him.

4. He keeps His own (John 10:27-29).

Believers are Christ's sheep and because they are His sheep they hear His voice and follow Him. He not only gives unto them eternal life but holds them in His omnipotent hands. They are absolutely secure because no man is able to pluck them out of His hands.

IV. Some Blessings Received Through the Savior.

1. Physical strength (Acts 3:1-11). The healing of the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple is a fine example of Christ's ability to heal the body. This man had been lame from birth. Because the life of Jesus Christ was brought into touch with him, he was able immediately to arise—strength came into his feet and ankle bones. Not only did he arise, but he walked and leaped, praising God.

2. Justification (Rom. 5:1-11).

The one who receives Jesus Christ is declared righteous. His guilt is removed, and because he is justified, he has peace with God, the assurance that God loves him, and real joy in God Himself.

3. Christ is the Supreme Example to the believer (Phil. 2:5-10).

Because the Savior became incorporated with the race through the incarnation, He is able to impart life to those with whom He is identified. Furthermore, because He thus imparts life, the believer is able to make Him an example. He is able to express the same spirit of devotion and humility in giving himself in service instead of being served.

Spend Time With God

It is the failure to spend a definite, even though it be short, time each day with God that is the secret of all weakness, variability, and shallowness in our spiritual experience and service.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

"I know that man—
that is exactly the way he talks"

SHE was listening to a demonstration of an Atwater Kent. Turning the FULL-VISION Dial from one station to another, suddenly she heard the voice of a friend she had not seen for years. She listened eagerly. It was "exactly the way he talked."

"I'll take the set," she said. "This radio tells the truth."

Anyone can convince himself that Atwater Kent receivers and speakers do give faithful reproduction. Listen to an orchestra and pick out the individual instruments. Each has its own character—its own identity.

Turn to a male quartet, a piano solo, a radio drama with all the varying voices and inflections—or to the President when he speaks. Every sound is true to the original. That is the standard of Atwater Kent performance.

Atwater Kent gives it to you for less money. Less money because Atwater Kent Radio is manufactured in great quantities, making economies of production possible. Yet this huge output does not affect quality in the slightest. For every set, besides being made of the finest materials, has to pass 222 tests or inspections in the course of manufacture.

Turn the FULL-VISION Dial and listen to "the radio that tells the truth."

THE STORY

Webster Brond is serving as a scout and spy for the army under General Braddock preparing for the advance on Fort Duquesne. He has just returned to Alexandria from a visit to the fort, where, posing as a Frenchman, he has secured valuable information. Braddock, bred to European warfare, fails to realize the importance of the news. Brond is sent back to Fort Duquesne, also bearing a message to George Croghan, English emissary among the Indians. Brond joins his friend and fellow scout, Round Paw, Indian chief, and they set out. On the way they fall in with a typical backwoodsman, Balsar Cromit, who joins them. The party encounters a group of settlers threatening a young girl, Elsie Dinwiddie, whom they accuse of witchcraft. Brond saves her from them. The girl disappears. Webster delivers his message to Croghan. Young Col. George Washington rescues Brond from bullying English soldiers. He works a bully in a fight, and finds Elsie Dinwiddie. Brond is sent on a scouting expedition to Fort Duquesne, and finds a French scouting party besieging an old cabin in which Elsie has taken refuge. In the ensuing fight she escapes. Brond takes his way to Duquesne.

This sudden attack sent us half a mile back from the river. We made a wide circuit and I was still disgruntled at my poor shooting when the Onondaga picked up a poultice of chewed sassafras leaves, such as Indian and white man used for gunshot wounds in an emergency. My spirits rebounded, for we now knew my small ball had scored. We saw nothing of the fellow, however; nor did we believe he could be badly wounded.

We camped early that night above Stewart's crossing, taking great care to hide our trail. The Onondaga killed a turkey with his ax and this we heated, rather than cooked, over a tiny fire and ate it half raw.

Still keeping back from the river we crossed Great Swamp creek the next day and suffered much from tiny black flies that were as voracious as wolves in February. Barely pausing to eat a handful of parched corn and what was left of the turkey, we left the disagreeable area and pushed on to Salt lick, or Jacobs' creek.

As Captain Jacobs' town was eight or nine miles back from the mouth of this creek, we ventured to swing in close to the Youghiogony so as to give the place plenty of clearance. Hardy had said the village was abandoned, but savages have a way of being where you least expect them, and Jacobs never had left his town because of fear. We covered thirty miles that day, and were very weary when we made camp and broiled some small game over a sheltered fire.

The journey to Sewickley creek was uneventful. No Indians, so far as we could observe, had passed up our side of the river. This was not as we had wished, however, for if the scouting party, which had dogged us while we were under Hardy's protection, should keep to the other side of the Youghiogony it would necessitate its crossing the river at or near Allaquippa's town. Therefore, we were much relieved, although instantly put on our guard, when we discovered the remains of a recent camp a short distance below the mouth of the Sewickley.

The number of fires, built since the rainstorm, indicated the passing of at least fifty warriors. The trail led north toward Turtle creek, and as there were no signs of scouts being thrown out on the flanks it was plain the hand feared no danger and were avoiding Allaquippa's town, and were making a swift march to Duquesne.

We followed the trail for two miles, to make sure no scouts were covering the back-track, then cut back to the Sewickley and traveled up-stream as far as Thicketty run. Changing our course again, we made due west so as to approach Allaquippa's town as if coming from Duquesne.

It was late afternoon and growing dark in the woods when Round Paw informed me:

"They can hear a gun now." After more walking he announced, "They can hear two whoops now."

But we did not make our camp until he said:

"They can hear one whoop now."

So we halted in bailing distance of the town. Not caring to enter the village until positive none of the scouting party had swung back to pay it a visit, we turned in for the night.

We were awake in good season but took our time in breaking camp. Round Paw used his bow and arrows to good advantage and we dined excellently on small game. I buried the fire and waited while the Indian scouted to the edge of the woods and reconnoitered the village. After some time he stole back to me and said no French Indians were there, and but very few of the Delaware.

I told him to announce our arrival, and he threw back his head to give a loud halloo, demanded by Indian etiquette so that residents could come from the village and lead the stranger in. I clapped a hand over his mouth and he lowered his head and listened. It was very faint at first, then became more audible—the thudding of swift flying feet coming down the Duquesne path. The runner was making no attempt at secrecy. We moved closer to the trail and waited.

Soon the runner came into sight, a tall man with his hair roached like a Huron. He was naked except for his breechclout and carried no arms. But he did carry that which was of poignant interest to me, a heavy festoon of wampum about his neck.

Round Paw whispered: "A carrier of belts. He comes unarmed. They say he brings French belts to Allaquippa."

Colonel Washington's warning that I must intercept any bloody or war-belts was fresh in my mind, and I loosened my ax. The Onondaga grunted a disapproval and grasped my arm to restrain me, for the office of a belt-carrier was almost sacred, and whether his proffer of war-belts was accepted or rejected he was supposed to have an open road in arriving and departing. I forced myself to think only one thought—the Frenchmen's desire to win over Allaquippa's warriors and turn their hatchets against the colonies.

"He must not take the belts to the village," I whispered.

"To kill a carrier of belts will make your orenda weak and sick," muttered Round Paw.

"If coming to us, yes. But he goes to the woman, Allaquippa."

The runner was now close to our position. He ran rapidly and showed no sign of fatigue although I suspected he had kept up the pace since leaving the French fort. It was akin to murder to drop the fellow, but there was much more than my personal feelings at stake. The delivery of bloody belts must be prevented at all costs. Round Paw understood my determination and whispered in my ear:

"Wait. He will pass this bush. Without his belts he will be laughed at. He shall not see us."

He gently pushed me back and moved to the side of the trail and pulled out his ax. I let him have his way, glad to avoid the grewsome duty, but kept my rifle ready to stop the fellow should my red companion make a mess of it. Along came the runner, and when opposite us and within two feet of us, he leaped high and opened his mouth to sound the guest-call. At the same moment the Onondaga slipped into the trail behind him and clipped him with the flat of his ax over the head before he could utter a sound.

The man went down like one dead and before I could offer to give a hand the Onondaga had yanked the wampum free and was pulling me deeper into the forest. The last glimpse I had of the belt-carrier revealed him sprawled out on his face, his head twisted sidewise and his mouth still open.

Long Oration Spoiled Evening for Senator

A prominent man in public life—a senator, it may be said without fear of embarrassing him—was the principal speaker at a recent banquet. More than that—he was the victim of one of those persons whose duty it is to speak as curtain-raiser to the main attraction of the evening and who forgets himself in his own flow of oratory.

He went on and on and the reporters were getting restless and worried about making the final editions with the principal speaker's important talk. Finally, the senator handed a reporter a message: "How long can you men wait?" He was given the time and then asked in a message how long the gentleman speaking was going to hold the floor. He courteously replied—for it can again be safely said that

We retreated from the trail and ran north and crossed it and turned back toward the village. While we halted to learn if the scene had been witnessed by some early hunter, or if the man had regained his senses, we took time to examine the wampum.

The strings consisted of white beads, alternated with red. The belt was a more pretentious affair, being composed of black and red beads with a hatchet worked with white beads in the middle—a French war belt and handsomely fashioned, and one a neutral tribe would feel honored in having presented even though it could not be accepted.

As no alarm was sounded, we advanced to the clearing surrounding the cabins, and the Onondaga hid the wampum at the foot of a basswood tree. Then lifting his voice he sounded the call and when he finished I shouted in French. After a few minutes two men of middle age slowly came to meet us, and one of them greeted:

"If you are tired from long walking your mats are waiting for you. There is meat in the kettle."

"Our legs were tired but now they feel strong after we have looked at the face of our brother," I answered in the Leni-Lenape tongue.

They made no response to this but turned and led the way to the village. I counted twenty cabins made of small trees, low and roofed with bark. Had I been a Frenchman, I would have felt discouraged over our reception. The absence of warriors was partly explained by those we saw through cabin doors sleeping off the effects of a debauch.

What was disturbing was the glimpse I caught of a white man, dressed as an Indian and wearing a tiny silver hatchet on a neck chain. I had met him before, and his presence in the village made it impossible for me to claim a recent departure from Duquesne. He was earnestly talking to an aged Delaware. The Indian clutched a bottle of brandy in his hand while he listened.

After passing this cabin, our conductors halted before an empty hut and informed us it would be our quarters while in the village. They seemed to be in haste to leave us, but when outside the door, one halted and said:

"Allaquippa, the woman sachem, will ask where you came from."

"Tell her a Frenchman and a Caughnawaga Iroquois have come from a scout to Castleman's river and would rest before going on to Duquesne."

"The path between Allaquippa's village and Duquesne is beaten down very hard by French feet. The Leni-Lenape's moccasins slip in traveling over it. Our sachem says the path is old and worn out," he replied.

"I see a French brother is here ahead of us," I said, ignoring his veiled hint that too many Frenchmen were coming to the village to suit Allaquippa.

He sullenly replied: "He brings much brandy, which is bad. He brings a belt, which is very bad."

So our coup on the red carrier of belts had not stopped the war talk of the enemy from reaching the village. However, the Delaware's open disapproval of us spoke well for the loyalty of the woman to the English. Requesting Round Paw to remain near the hut I departed to look up the owner of the silver ax, and by a bold course disarm suspicion.

When I halted in the doorway of his cabin he glanced up with an ugly scowl, then was slightly perplexed for a moment. Before I could announce myself, he was coming forward to greet me, and exclaiming:

"Monsieur Beland, who was at our fort in the spring! My heart sings to behold you again. I have been in this cursed place two days, trying to get an audience with that old demon Allaquippa. Welcome a thousand times. And let us drink if I can find a bottle these filthy ones have not mouthed."

"Name of joy! I am rejoiced to see Monsieur Falest once more," I genially cried.

We embraced, and he waved me to a keg and requested that I take my ease. His Indian companion rose, still clutching the half-emptied bottle, and staggered outdoors.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

What The Proposed Drivers License Law Would Do

Much interest is being taken by motorists throughout the state of Illinois in the drivers license bill that is to be considered by the present legislature and which may be enacted into a law.

The bill has been drafted as a life saving measure and has many good points if they will be enforced when the bill becomes a law. The trouble is that more motor vehicles are being driven on the highways of Illinois by nuts and fools than by sane persons. A little moonshine makes reckless devils out of some drivers, hence the terrible automobile accidents we hear about almost every day. The bill in question is trying to overcome some of these evils. Here are a few of the main points showing who shall not be licensed:

The Registrar shall not issue any license: Except a junior operator's license, to any person under the age of eighteen years;

To any person whose license has been suspended during the period for which such license was suspended, nor to any person whose license has been revoked under the provisions of this Act until the expiration of one year after such license was revoked.

To any person who is an habitual drunkard, or is addicted to the use of narcotic drugs.

To any person who has previously been adjudged insane or an idiot, imbecile, epileptic or feeble-minded, and who has not at the time of such application, been restored to competency by judicial decree, or released from a hospital for the insane or feeble-minded upon a certificate of the superintendent that such person is competent.

To any person when, in the opinion of the Registrar, such person is afflicted with or suffering from such physical or mental disability or disease as will serve to prevent such person from exercising reasonable and ordinary control over a motor vehicle while operating the same.

To any person who is unable to read and understand highway warning or directions signs in the English language.

Physical disability includes the following: Any person who has lost the use of both hands; or whose eyesight is so impaired that he is color blind, or with the aid of glasses he cannot distinguish substantial objects clearly at distance of 150 feet; or who shall have less than 20 per cent of normal vision; to possess 20 per cent of normal vision one must be able, with one eye, to read all the letters on the line marked "20" of standard test

The Women's Missionary Union of the M. E. church held its January meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Wm. Sayers. The meeting was opened by singing "Blessed Assurance," after which Mrs. T. E. Ream led in the devotionals. The study chapter "Learning to Live Together" was in charge of Mrs. Worth Mooney. The minutes of the December meeting were read by Mrs. F. A. Francis, in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Henry Miller. Readings were given by Ruth Bethel and Marie Gillette. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Mildred Sayers and Mrs. G. L. Francis.

The Royal Neighbors held their annual installation of officers in the Urch hall Tuesday evening. In the absence of the installing officer, Mrs. Ella Button, Mrs. Dorothy Osmus, acted as installing officer. The officers installed were: Oracle, Lottie Lockwood; vice-oracle, Elizabeth Braun; past oracle, Anna Bethel; chancellor, Ella Button; recorder, Daisy Lorber; receiver, Gladys Brown; inner sentinel, Myrtle Alexander; outer sentinel, Lydia Schumh; musician, Mrs. George Peterson.

Rev. T. E. Ream went to Genoa, Illinois Thursday where he officiated at two funerals.

Miss Ruth Sayers was pleasantly surprised in her home Wednesday afternoon by twelve friends, in celebration of her 12th birthday. The afternoon was spent with games and contests after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Wm. Sayers, assisted by Mrs. Edward Mangun. The honored guest received many gifts.

The New Lenox Home Improvement club was entertained Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Frank Roblin, with Mrs. George and Mrs. Norman Roth, assistant hostesses. Miss Laura Jones, Mrs. Archie Corp and Mrs. Arvid Swanson composed the program committee.

Mrs. Alfred Scherpe was hostess to the Women's Guild of the Grace Episcopal church in her home Wednesday afternoon. After the regular business of the society the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Harlow Gougar; vice-president, Mrs. Frank Marquet; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Frank Roblin.

David Gillett is recovering from an attack of the flu.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper is ill.

Miss Alta Urch is ill with pneumonia in her home.

Her Recognition

Small Elizabeth and her mother were walking down the street when they saw an urchin approaching them. Elizabeth stuck out her tongue. When they had gone on, her mother inquired "Why did you stick out your tongue at that little boy we just passed?" There was a pause while Elizabeth considered. "Why?" she replied, at length. "Why, mother, to show him I recognized him!"

Bird Migration

The reason why birds migrate is a mystery to biologists. They have been studying for hundreds of years to find out and are as much in the dark today as they were 200 years ago, according to Dr. Alexander Wetmore, president of the American Ornithological union.

So Talking Is Hot Air

A physicist has calculated that if 1,000,000 persons were to talk steadily and the energy of their voices were converted into heat, they would have to talk an hour and a half to produce enough heat to make a cup of tea.

The Latest Invention

Old Lady (to shopwalker)—I want to buy one of those wireless fans I read so much about; my room gets so frightfully stuffy.

PRINTED CREPE DE CHINE; CHENILLE DOTTED FABRICS

THE woman who makes her own simpler frocks, has a happy surprise awaiting her in the way of suitable and fascinating materials. We have in mind the new crepe de chine which take on the coloring and patterning of gay cretonnes.

Cretonnes, because of their handsome colorings and striking designs have always held a fascination for most of us. Lacking, however, the sheerness and suppleness of silk and carrying with them the flavor of mere drapery material, they did not quite qualify as desirable media for other than sports apparel.

There is a real treat in store for the seeker of "something different" in the way of silks, in that certain enterprising designers have eliminated the "ifs" concerning cretonne as a suitable dress material. That is, by "putting two and two together" or rather adding the silkiness and suppleness of crepe de chine to the colorfulness and designfulness of cretonne, a happy union has been effected. And so it is that a charming series of silk prints are this season available which are just the thing for gay little afternoon frocks.

Just to show you how attractively these silken cretonne prints work up, we are illustrating our story with a picture of a cunning model made of a strictly new crepe de chine in point of coloring and design. It features a lum of present-day fashion has swung back to chenille dotted fabrics. Not only tulle but materials of all sorts with chenille dots are "in" again.

Seeing that in Parisienne is expressing a special fondness for black-and-white effects, it is not surprising that the gown pictured is right in line with this vogue. The tiers on the skirt stress that sprightly flare which is indicative of the new trend. The scarfing of the shoulder in billowy tulle is also expressive of that which is latest.

Speaking of color, among handsome new fabrics for the coming season, are many chiffons in street shades with chenille dots in self-tones, the dots grading from large at the selvage to small at the opposite side of the wide border. A beige georgette, for instance, with matching chenille dots, makes up effectively for afternoon wear. Black chenille on a black sheer background is especially handsome for dressy occasions as are the high waistline effect, with a shirred girdle which ties at the back. The bands which trim it are of blue taffeta silk.

Striking originality is the keynote of most all of the advance silk prints. In many instances, modern art themes form the basis of highly decorative patternings. Large cubes and conical shapes, zigzag lines and various forms are worked into masses of shaded colors with thrilling effect.

Among outstanding types are silks which adopt pen lines or etching designs. Because of the fineness of lines, the patterns take on an exquisite delicacy which is a welcome change from the more massive effects of solid coloring.

"My party dress is of tulle all dotted with chenille"—could Miss Modern peep within the pages of grandma's diary which she kept in her youthful days, she might find these very words written in the pages of the long ago—which would be the more interesting because the penduvarious chenille-dotted fabrics in burgundy or navy, or any of the new blues from navy to marine, also green in its many phases is a universal favorite.

Browsing around in voguish places one discovers that chenille is playing a fashionable role in more ways than one. There's shoulder flowers, for instance, very chic ones are of chenille. Like huge chrysanthemums are they their supple petals falling in graceful lines. You can buy them in an exact matching shade to your chiffon, velvet or satin gown, and they are even more popular for daytime than for evening wear.

Chenille embroidery is also lending charm and a note of elaboration to many a hat or gown or blouse. Modish millinery also features the chenille-crocheted hat. The beret, crocheted or chenille is especially cited at this time.

Gifted Teacher Well Deserves the Laurel

If a teacher can interest every pupil in his class that teacher can sell financial paper and probably make far more money at it. But he will not give up teaching, for his heart is in it. Teachers are born, not made, as poets are.

In many a school a whole class of pupils is often so trained by a gifted teacher that it goes through life with an accurate understanding and a deeper feeling for the values of genuine knowledge, than some other class less favored. Thirty or forty boys and girls have learned the art of true culture. Their instructor and preceptor has opened their eyes. None of them will ever suffer from a blighted intellectual life.

We scarcely know and appreciate the extraordinary power of a talented teacher; only the pupils themselves realize it, and even they, not fully, until they are well along in life. They may ply their oar awkwardly at first, but everyone can paddle his own canoe after a few years of such tutelage. Poems have been written to those who deserve the laurels in all ranks, but not enough of them to "Teacher."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mrs. Bell Tells Her Friends of Her Narrow Escape

"Something over a year ago I had the flu, which left me with a very bad cough which kept getting worse all the time, until I could not lie down at night. If I attempted to lie down I would cough all night and choke up so I would have to sit up in bed. This continued until I got so weak I could not walk across the floor, and every night I thought would be my last. I became so thin that my hands would meet around my legs. My doctor said that my lungs were affected and I was in a desperate condition.

"Finally I read about Milks Emulsion and started to use it. I have now taken it about three months and I am entirely recovered. My cough is gone and I have taken on flesh and strength, and I thank God that I found Milks Emulsion.

"I have spread the good news among all my friends and there are five of my immediate neighbors taking it, and they all say it has done them so much good. Yours truly, MRS. K. BELL, 1640 Bergen St., Brooklyn, N. Y."

Sold by all druggists under a guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind.—Adv.

Just Like Football

Little Meredith returning home from a visit to a farm was telling of the many things that interested her and in describing a hen and chickens she told her mother: "And, mother, when the little chickens get cold they all do a huddle with the old mother hen just like the boys that play football out on the playground do."

POOR SUPPORT

TINLEY LOSES

On Tuesday night, January 15th the Tinley Park teams were decisively defeated by two powerful Chicago Heights teams. The cause for the defeats were partly poor support and ragged playing by Tinley.

The light weights lost by a score of 37 to 19. This horrible defeat was partly due to the absence of 2 of the Tinley star players. Tinley was never in the lead and never close enough to overcome the Hgts.

On Sunday Tinley lights lost a hard contest to the Lutheran lights. The score was 27 to 23.

The heavy weights were more fortunate and only lost by a score of 25 to 17. The heavies have yet to get their first victory. Come out next Friday and Tuesday, Jan. 18 and 22 respectively and help them to accomplish this.

Here you are folks, the following games: Jan. 18—Steger girls vs. Tinley girls (also light and heavy weight game.)

Jan. 22—B. I. Lutherans at Tinley (Girls and heavy weights).

Feb. 1—Homewood at Tinley. Do not forget these games.

Here is your first chance to see the Tinley Girls in action on Jan. 18. Come on out and cheer them on to victory. Let us put Tinley on the map in the sport world.

Signaling by Drums

In South Africa messages are signaled by means of drums made of bark, the tapings on which can be heard many miles away. It is by this method that the defeat of Sir Redvers Buller at Colenso was made known to natives 60 miles distant in the space of two hours.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.
